Subject: your book

Dear Gavin Andresen,

I've been following the developments about Bitcoin with interest. Although it's early, and perhaps premature, if you have any interest in eventually writing a book about your activities for a trade audience, I would like to talk to you about it.

Our reputation as a literary agency is for working with serious authors in translating their ideas and information into successful, commercial books which we license directly to publishers in the global market place.

Clients include Chris Anderson (Wired), Stewart Brand, Rodney Brooks, Nicholas Carr, George Church, Richard Dawkins, Daniel C. Dennett, Jared Diamond, George Dyson, Gerald Edelman, Michael Gazzaniga, Murray Gell-Mann, Neil Gershenfeld, Daniel Gilbert, Daniel Goleman, Brian Greene, Alan Guth, W. Daniel Hillis, Daniel Kahneman, Eric Kandel, Kevin Kelly, Jaron Lanier, Joseph LeDoux, Andre Linde, Marvin Minsky, Benoit Mandelbrot (Estate), John Markoff, Martin Nowak, Elaine Pagels, Steven Pinker, V.S. Ramachandran, Martin Rees, Clay Shirky, Lee Smolin, George Smoot, Paul Steinhardt, Leonard Susskind, Nassim Taleb, Neil Turok, Robert Trivers, J. A list of selected clients is appended below.

Among our other activities is Edge Foundation, Inc, a nonprofit foundation, which publishes "Edge" (<http://www.edge.org>), a website which, although not related to the business, is a good indicator of our network and range of interests. In addition to the regular features on the edge.org site, see also: See EDGE Master Classes & Seminars; and the EDGE Annual "Billionaires" Dinner, which began, much more humbly as the "digerati" dinner at Comdex in 1985. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

John Brockman

p.s. Finally, speaking of the billionaires at the EDGE dinner, Jeffrey Epstein, ("International Moneyman of Mystery", NY Magazine), has expressed an interest in talking to you about a business matter. You can email him, if interested, at [REDACTED]. It's probably worth doing so.
