Correction: Time, Inc. (but not the magazine itself) is accepting bitcoin subscriptions for their brands like Fortune, Health, Travel+Leisure, etc. Still working on Time magazine! (separate billing system)

We're going to start focusing on some new metrics to track bitcoin's progress out of the investment/speculative phase to being more of a payment network over the coming years. I'll include the most recent data in these newsletters going forward. Those are:

- non-trading USD transaction volume per week on Coinbase: $15.1M
- monthly transacting users on Coinbase: 32.9k
- monthly API unique users on Coinbase: 948

And similar stats to before.

- 2.1M consumer wallets, 38k merchants, 7k developers

Summary of the past month:

- We announced that Time Magazine is accepting bitcoin for subscriptions in print and online, along with their other brands, Fortune, Health, Travel+Leisure, etc
- Burning man is accepting bitcoin donations through Coinbase
- We launched a makeover of the API docs and a new developer blog (part of a larger revamp of our developer portal)
- We have an official iOS app now back in the Apple app store
- We launched a new version of our Android app
- Launched a holiday gift program
- Launched a wordpress plugin for our tip button
